Roter Veltliner
Ried Steinberg
DRY

A Roter Veltliner from one of the best sites of the Wagram wine growing region. The spontaneous fermentation took place in large wooden barrels and then the wine was allowed to mature on the full lees in these barrels for another five months. This resulted in the very juicy structure, which has a fine mineral character. Potential for 10 years.

 HANDPICKED ***

Ried Steinberg is one of the largest, but also one of the best locations in Wagram. Josef Fritz: „For me, it's the ideal location for Roter Veltliner: dry and hot, just what this indigenous variety needs. Nowhere else does it thrive as well and as healthily as here.“

The name comes from the stony sandy soil, which alternates with loess here. At the foot of the mountain, loess dominates and merges further up into sandy loess over a stony subsoil. Tertiary gravel dominates at the top, almost 370 metres above sea level. Steinberg is one of the very highest sites in Wagram.
